THE RAYMOND LION

Many Lions found the past week a very busy one—much of it Lions business—some personal business—a little monkey business.

The annual District Convention for all four divisions of District 37 was held in Missoula on May 7, 8, 9, and 10. Paul Moreland and Elda carried the official responsibility for the Raymond Club. Karl and Hilda and Milt and Eva were able to get to the Friday sessions. They got the highlights of the whole show. Paul gave a brief report to the stay-at-homes in the regular meeting held at the Legion Hall on May 19th. Morris Sanford is the new Governor of our District 37D. The outstanding item on entertainment was the Vigilante Parade. This consists of floats and demonstrations in costume planned, arranged and carried out entirely by students of the Helena High School. They present a full dress pageant of Montana and Helena history. It has been brewing for several years. It now takes over an hour to pass a given point and is really something to see.

Our incoming President Joe McLean took his good wife and six others to the Zone Party at Waterton on May 11th. Karl and Hilda, Renan and Beatrice, Cliff and Eulala took the trip along with Joe. They reported a very good party. The crowd was from the pass towns and Macleod. Two cars from Raymond and one from Cardston completed the prairie pilgrimage.

The regular meeting of the Lions Club on May 19th began very promptly—too promptly for five of the boys—they got caught with their dimes down. George Garner, a new member, gave us a very interesting reading of a letter written about Southern Alberta fifty years ago.

Arlidge announced the special Ladies Night. The last meeting in June will be our annual Lady Executive Supper. The girls take over the show—and how! The same evening the authority is passed over to the new President and his executives for another year. This is the meeting not to miss.

Chamber of Commerce Organized With Heber Allen President

Just the right size of crowd—the Council Room was packed—attended the organization meeting of the Raymond Chamber of Commerce on Monday evening.

Mayor Frank R. Taylor was Chairman of the meeting and introduced Charles Bryant, W. T. Hill, Robert J. Klison and Dennis S. O'Connell all of Lethbridge who came out to assist in the formation of the local organization. All these men are actively associated with the Lethbridge Chamber. Mr. O'Connell, who is the Secretary of the Lethbridge Chamber of Commerce, was spokesman for the group and gave a very comprehensive outline on the aims, purposes and benefits of such an organization.

The visitors were invited to sit at the table to form a panel to answer all questions from the floor. A question that has been wondered about many times was the difference between a Chamber of Commerce and a Board of Trade. Mr. O'Connell explained that the difference was one of locale; in England and on the continent, Board of Trade is used while the American and Canadian organizations favored the name Chamber of Commerce.

After the many questions had been answered Mr. Taylor asked for, and

The average farm in the United States in 1920 was about 150 acres in size. By 1950 it had increased to 215 acres. The number of farms in that country is decreasing at the rate of about 35,000 a year.

Canadian Citizenship

By Jeannie

(Another of the essays written by High School students for the Rotary Club contest.)

Wonderous and sweet is our name. We are Canadian Citizens. To me Canadian Citizenship is the key to a beautiful life of peace, contentment, love and happiness.

Familiar to every Canadian Citizen like myself, is the mighty Canadian Flag. The Canadian Flag, symbolic of peace, security, happiness and plenty, is one linking link in the chain which is called 'A Canadian Life'. A bright shining link, mighty and powerful as an eagle yet, as gentle as a lamb.

"O Canada", our National Anthem, is another brilliant link in the chain "A Canadian Life". "O Canada" the song to whose dulcet strains every Canadian's heart swells with pride, yes pride in Canada "glorious and free" Our Canada, a democratic country, is indeed glorious in her rich robes of natural resources. She is as free as the wild birds which fly over her endless plains. The plains on which, if we but labor diligently each day for our bread and butter, can disclose to us, the real meaning of prosperity and plenty. Canada, the land where, if we, the citizens, remain in the golden ring of laws, will know peace and contentment rather than the chaos that rules some countries.

Security and happiness are in the pot at the end of our rainbow of love and loyalty. Love and loyalty to our families and neighbors and to our government which stands over us like a loving mother protecting her young.

That is what Canadian Citizenship means to me. I am, indeed, very proud to say "I am a Canadian Citizen" got, a motion that a Chamber of Commerce be organized in Raymond. Nominations were held and by secret ballot Heber F. Allen was chosen as the new President with Arlidge W. Hill as First Vice President and T. Geo. Wood as Second Vice President. Lincoln Wood is the new Secretary.

One of the highlights of the meeting was the impromptu talk by L. D. King, a past president of Raymond's old Board of Trade. Mr. King spoke very forcefully on the importance of the Chamber of Commerce and the part it can fill so well in the town's march forward. L.D. received a hearty round of applause from the gathering.

After his election President Allen took charge of the meeting and the further elections, at the conclusion of which he was given the authority by the gathering to set up various committees needed to carry forward the activities of the organization.

Financial matters were discussed and a motion was made to have the Chamber of Commerce supersede the old Board of Trade. This was carried unanimously.

Of course there was no definite statement of policy made at the meeting but there are several projects that are under consideration at the present time.

A schedule of membership fees will be drafted and merchants and citizens alike are being asked to join The Raymond Chamber of Commerce.

FOR PARENTS ONLY

Building Self-Confidence

By Nancy Cleaver

"Why can't you get on the ball team, Bill. When I was your age I was pitching for our school's first team every game."

"Marion, I'm so sorry you tried to give your hair a home permanent! It is quite neat braided and you've only made your head look queer!"

"Your older brother was always near the top of his class! John, why are you always trailing along near the bottom. If you would only work like he did, you might get somewhere with your studies."

The three parents who made these remarks would be very much annoyed if anyone accused them of destroying their child's self-confidence. They certainly don't want to do that! But they have been so eager for their child to play on a team, or look attractive, or excel at school that they have forgotten their responsibility for building their child's self-confidence.

Self-esteem is important for the happiness and success of any child as well as any grown-up. We all need that inner glow of self assurance which accompanies it. Quiet poise of manner springs from a person's conviction of his own worth.

This essential character trait is easily hurt, or even destroyed. Bill's dad was damaging his boy's self-confidence by making an unflattering comparison with his own boyhood prowess. Marion's mother was harming her child by criticizing Marion's efforts at hairdressing, and of all things, suggesting her adolescent daughter looked "queer"! John's parents reproached the poor boy for his school standing by reminding him of his older brother's brilliant record. What surer ways can be found than these of pulling a child down—instead of—building him up?

There are other thoughtless techniques for dissolving a child's self assurance such as too much protection as well as too much direction. A home atmosphere which is constantly tense and worried does not send well-poised children out into the world.

A child should not be allowed to withdraw from a situation which he should face, or leave a task unfinished which should be done. If a parent shuts his eyes, the child will not face a similar situation or complete the same kind of task with self-reliance the next time he meets them. The greatest stimulus to the growth of confidence is the personal satisfaction which follows an obstacle met and successfully overcome.

A parent should not substitute the desire for praise from mother or dad, for the child's own judgment that his action has been praiseworthy, whether or not anyone else thinks so. Encouragement is always welcome, and praise if it is sincere and deserved should be given to a boy or girl. But a child should not be trained to think that his goal is the commendation of his parents. Real achievement brings its own reward.

For Parents Only

Thus it is the wise parent who from the child's earliest years, provides him with simple tasks he can do, and easy problems he can solve. As his knowledge and skill grows, he should be confronted with jobs and situations which demand more of him. At the same time, the child should not be tested with something which is so beyond his powers that repeated failure will only bring discouragement.

A boy or girl needs an immediate goal. Parents forget their own public school days when they expect their child to save for a college education! At this stage a youngster is more apt to set aside a small amount for a definite purpose, like saving for a bicycle he can ride in a few months' time.

Mother's who measure their children's height know how they vary in their growth. All children are different in their inner development too. A mother can help her child who lacks self-confidence by showing him that she loves him and accepts him as he is. He may be very poor at reading, but look how smart he is in arithmetic! He may be quite dumb at throwing a ball but he certainly can roller-skate better than any other child in the block! He may benefit from extra help in places where he is weak, but his parents will not nag at him or make unfavourable comparisons.

Self-confidence is a sort of invisible armour which a child wears which repels the darts of an unfriendly or a hostile world. Dryden said truly: "Have you given your child this self-protection which he needs now and which will stand him good stead in his adventures to-morrow as an adult?"

In these days of pension benefits, paid vacations, escalator clauses and the coffee recess, an advertisement published by a Chicago department store makes curious reading. It lists some of the rules laid down in an employees handbook of 1857. Here are a few of them:

Store must open from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. year around.

Store must be swept and counters bases, shelves and show cases dusted.

Lamps must be trimmed, bins filled chimneys cleaned, doors and windows opened, a pail of water also a bucket of coal brought in before breakfast (if there is time to do so) and attend to customers who call.

Each employee must not pay less than $5.00 a year to the church and must attend Sunday School regularly.

Men employees are given one evening a week for courting and two if they go to prayer-meeting.

After fourteen hours in the store the leisure time should be spent mostly in reading.

Obviously, overtime wasn't an issue in 1857. There was no time for it. Nor apparently, for much of anything else either. In those days a fellow really had to hustle to get into trouble.

Canadian Garden Service

By Gordon Lindsay Smith
Still Time For A Show

There is still plenty of time for a big show of flowers and a fine yield of vegetables. In fact one can go on sowing all sorts of seeds and setting out plants right up to July in many parts of Canada and still get good results. With a bit of luck in the weather, mostly in the way of showers, growth is very rapid during the extraordinarily long hours of sunlight we have in June. To catch up experienced gardeners will use a little extra care with these late started gardens. They will make sure the soil is well cultivated and enriched where at all possible with chemical fertilizer or manure. They will thin seedlings to give them plenty of room. With certain flowers and vegetables that require a long season to bloom or mature they will use well started plants, watering carefully and perhaps shading from the hot sun for a few days after they are set out.

Transplanting

Transplanting is one of the most important and commonest jobs in gardening. Even the tiniest flower or vegetable plants sometimes have to be moved, to give them room to develop. When small practically anything can be moved if we observe a few simple rules. The main thing is to keep the roots undisturbed, to keep away from the air and to cover quickly and firmly with fine damp earth. Watering during and immediately after transplanting, unless the soil is very moist is essential and also if possible supplying a little shade for the first few hours or a day or two. With big things like trees and shrubbery, it is always advisable to tie the firmly to a stake to prevent the wind loosening. Where feasible and there are only a few things to move, one should do the job in the cool of the evening and preferably when there is no wind. Above all it is most important to cover the roots well and keep the soil firmly pressed around them. To speed growth and lessen the shock of moving, it is a good plan to sprinkle a little chemical fertilizer around but not actually touching the roots.

Make Sure Soil Is Ready

One can safely move or transplant nursery stock like trees and shrubs when the soil is rather damp, but it is a mistake to do any general sowing or cultivating while the ground is the least bit muddy. Heavy soil is actually injured and later trouble results when it is dug or worked too soon. A good test is to take a little earth and squeeze it in the hand. If when released it crumbles but does not pack it is fit for the spade or plow.

A New Use For D.D.T.

Mice! Mice! Millions of mice chewing everything in sight. But they don't like plants or seeds or bulbs or corms that have been treated with D.D.T. Several early gardeners in Lethbridge have made this observation and pass it on for what it may be worth.

Noticing his tulip tips being eaten off as they emerged, a grower treated the area with 3% D.D.T. dust to get the cutworms. No cutworms were present but the damage stopped. Other damage, notably the digging out of germinating sweet peas and early garden peas, pointed to mice as the culprits. A later bed of tulips showed the foraging of this pest. Being of an experimental turn of mind, the grower D.D.T. dusted half the patch. The treated half grew normally, while the mice kept the untreated half eaten to ground level. The peas were resown, a light strip of D.D.T. dust placed on the soil above the row and the mice left them in peace.

Another householder got a surprise when he opened his storage of dahlias and gladioli corms. Mice had obtained entry during the winter. They fed freely on both tubers and corms. But the gladioli, when put in storage, had been dusted with D.D.T. for thrip control. The dahlias tubers were riddled but there was not even a tooth mark on the gladioli.

Other insecticides have been used as repellents for animals. Nicotine sulphate, known more commonly as Black Leaf 40 and used for insect control, is also widely used to protect shrubs and plants from dog damage. And from Iowa comes a note that lindane treatment of corn for wireworm control protects plantings against pheasants.

Most gardeners use the 3% D.D.T. dust for a wide variety of insects. This added use may prove of value during our present mice plague.

Washer vs Coin Slugfest

The Canadian Standards Association is kicking around a problem which temporarily has leaders of that august body foxed, reports The Financial Post.

The point at issue: shall there be a new standard set for the manufacture of metal washers or should the thickness of Canadian quarters, dimes and nickels be changed?

An increasing number of metal washers or "slugs" have lately been finding their way into pay telephones and coin-operated vending machines. In the Eastern Division alone last year telephone companies found 131, 360 washers and slugs in 25¢ receptacles, a loss of $32,840.
